Table of Content

Part 1 – Historical views

15 Chapter 1.
A Garden of Eden? The promotion of the single-family house with a garden in Belgium before the Second World War
Pascal De Decker

51 Chapter 2.
Potatoes, spinach or flowers? Advice and practices on allotment gardening in Belgium, 1890-1940
Yves Segers & Roeland Hermans

Part 2 – Spatial views

69 Chapter 3.
The spatial importance of gardens: a regional perspective
Kirsten Bomans, Valerie Dewaelheyns, Kristof Heylen & Hubert Gulinck

85 Chapter 4.
For every house a garden…
A morphological assessment of residential development in Flanders’ rural areas
Thomas Verbeek, Ann Pisman, Hans Leinfelder & Georges Allaert

107 Chapter 5.
How pervious is the garden? The extent of imperviousness among different neighborhood types
Klaartje Verbeeck, Martin Herm & Jos Van Orshoven

123 Chapter 6.
Two standardized procedures for recording gardens in the rural/urban interface
Bob Bunce
Part 3 – Ecological and social views

137 Chapter 7.
Ecological principles and guidelines for sustainable urban planning
Erik Rombaut

153 Chapter 8.
Gardens and plant biodiversity: Noah’s Ark or mixed blessing?
Martin Hermy & Bart Claessens

165 Chapter 9.
Soil fertility in domestic and public gardens in Flanders: the state of the art
Annemie Elsen, Stan Deckers & Hilde Vandendriessche

179 Chapter 10.
Gardens in environmental perspective: fertilizers and organic residues in gardens
Valerie Dewaelheyns, Kirsten Bomans & Hubert Gulinck

199 Chapter 11.
The ‘green edge’ in urban streets: the impact of urban gardens and street trees on people’s health and well-being
Jenny Roe & Catharine Ward Thompson

223 Synthesis
How Powerful is the Garden?
Hubert Gulinck, Hans Leinfelder, Valerie Dewaelheyns & Kirsten Bomans

227 About the authors

233 Index of figures and tables